A wise person once said that “the true meaning of life is to plant trees, under whose shade you do not expect to sit.”

Planting a tree is an act of hope, an investment in our shared community, and a promise to our children. That’s how I view public service, and that’s why I view my second term, which began July 1, as an opportunity to work with you to shape the future of our neighborhoods and of our city.

With that in mind, I have decided to forgo a traditional inaugural party and instead will be hosting a series of shade tree giveaways at neighborhood farmers markets over the next six weeks. The shade tree giveaways will coincide with my trademark “Pop Up Office Hours,” where my staff and I bring City Hall to our neighborhoods by setting up a tent and meeting with any constituent who has a concern.

The various events are listed below. Constituents are welcome and invited to stop by, pick a free shade tree from cityplAnts , and take it home to plant. Four years ago, we gave away fruit trees at my inaugural party. People regularly tell me about the tree growing in their backyards, providing lemons, cherries, or some other bounty, and I hope the shade trees we give away throughout the next few weeks will make our neighborhoods cooler, more beautiful places to live and enjoy.

As Angelenos, the choices we make are not just about today, but also about tomorrow. In this next term, I will work to create the kind of neighborhoods that our children deserve. We need to plant the seeds of a future Los Angeles where the members of the next generation have clean air, clean water and open space to play in, housing they can afford to live in, and a convenient world-class mass transit system they can travel by . We owe them a city that is safe, that has ended homelessness, that relies of sustainable energy sources. We owe them a city that is fair, equitable, and welcoming to all.

I hope you'll join me in that work -- and I hope you'll join me at one of events at the farmers markets over the next several weeks, pick up a tree, and bring it home and plant it so that our neighborhoods can become greener and greater places to enjoy.

Regards,

MIKE
