Note:

Please take note of the large number of vehicles that were left unlocked. Consequently, the vehicle owners experienced a car 'break in' with little or no effort on the part of the thief! Let's not make it so easy for them! Please, remove your valuables and lock your cars. What we've seen recently is that in some residential areas the car thieves don't just target vehicles that are parked on the street. They are much more brazen than before and will walk right up onto your private residential driveway to access your car and the contents. And if a neighborhood proves successful in their 'shopping' spree, they'll continue to come back time and time again adversely affecting the neighborhood indefinitely.

Also, at this time of year, namely, Halloween, I try to encourage parents to monitor the Megan's Law website at www.meganslaw.ca.gov which can be quite an eye opener. Encourage all your California friends and relatives to check out the site and to familiarize themselves with their neighborhoods prior to sending out their young trick or treaters to knock on stranger's homes.

But keep in mind, sometimes the bigger threat is not the known offenders, but rather, the ones we don't yet know.

All the best,
